

GRAIN MARKETER's An Opportunity

Friday, Dec 6

Dumond Farm
(5083 White Rd.)
Union Springs

11:00 am - 2:00 pm
w/ lunch, "no charge"
rsvp by Dec 11
315-583-5296

Develop a strategy for low grain prices

To Store or Not to Store? That's the big question that drives post-harvest grain marketing, but you don't need a crystal ball to make an informed decision. By learning to evaluate the post-harvest marketing landscape, you can size-up grain storage opportunities with greater confidence.

Presented by Penn State Extension Agricultural Marketing Specialist John Berry. You may remember John presented at our meeting last December.

This seminar will enhance participants' market understanding, hone their marketing skills, and build confidence when making grain marketing decisions. All of this is achieved when we start to appreciate the value and ease of marketing actions based on actual market information.

This workshop is sponsored by the The New York Corn & Soybean Growers Association. Call Sharon if you would like to car pool (607) 753-5078 or shv7@cornell.edu. For more information contact Janice Degni at (607) 753-5215 or jgd3@cornell.edu.

GRAIN MARKETER's An Opportunity

Friday, Dec 6

Dumond Farm
(5083 White Rd.)
Union Springs

11:00 am - 2:00 pm
w/ lunch, "no charge"
rsvp by Dec 11
315-583-5296

Develop a strategy for low grain prices

To Store or Not to Store? That's the big question that drives post-harvest grain marketing, but you don't need a crystal ball to make an informed decision. By learning to evaluate the post-harvest marketing landscape, you can size-up grain storage opportunities with greater confidence.

Presented by Penn State Extension Agricultural Marketing Specialist John Berry. You may remember John presented at our meeting last December.

This seminar will enhance participants' market understanding, hone their marketing skills, and build confidence when making grain marketing decisions. All of this is achieved when we start to appreciate the value and ease of marketing actions based on actual market information.

This workshop is sponsored by the The New York Corn & Soybean Growers Association. Call Sharon if you would like to car pool (607) 753-5078 or shv7@cornell.edu. For more information contact Janice Degni at (607) 753-5215 or jgd3@cornell.edu.

GRAIN MARKETER's An Opportunity

Friday, Dec 6

Dumond Farm
(5083 White Rd.)
Union Springs

11:00 am - 2:00 pm
w/ lunch, "no charge"
rsvp by Dec 11
315-583-5296

Develop a strategy for low grain prices

To Store or Not to Store? That's the big question that drives post-harvest grain marketing, but you don't need a crystal ball to make an informed decision. By learning to evaluate the post-harvest marketing landscape, you can size-up grain storage opportunities with greater confidence.

Presented by Penn State Extension Agricultural Marketing Specialist John Berry. You may remember John presented at our meeting last December.

This seminar will enhance participants' market understanding, hone their marketing skills, and build confidence when making grain marketing decisions. All of this is achieved when we start to appreciate the value and ease of marketing actions based on actual market information.

This workshop is sponsored by the The New York Corn & Soybean Growers Association. Call Sharon if you would like to car pool (607) 753-5078 or shv7@cornell.edu. For more information contact Janice Degni at (607) 753-5215 or jgd3@cornell.edu.

GRAIN MARKETER's An Opportunity

Friday, Dec 6

Dumond Farm
(5083 White Rd.)
Union Springs

11:00 am - 2:00 pm
w/ lunch, "no charge"
rsvp by Dec 11
315-583-5296

Develop a strategy for low grain prices

To Store or Not to Store? That's the big question that drives post-harvest grain marketing, but you don't need a crystal ball to make an informed decision. By learning to evaluate the post-harvest marketing landscape, you can size-up grain storage opportunities with greater confidence.

Presented by Penn State Extension Agricultural Marketing Specialist John Berry. You may remember John presented at our meeting last December.

This seminar will enhance participants' market understanding, hone their marketing skills, and build confidence when making grain marketing decisions. All of this is achieved when we start to appreciate the value and ease of marketing actions based on actual market information.

This workshop is sponsored by the The New York Corn & Soybean Growers Association. Call Sharon if you would like to car pool (607) 753-5078 or shv7@cornell.edu. For more information contact Janice Degni at (607) 753-5215 or jgd3@cornell.edu.

Cornell University
Cooperative Extension
Cortland County

South Central NY Dairy & Field Crops Program

60 Central Avenue
Cortland, NY 13045
Phone: (607) 753-5077
<http://www.scnyat.cce.cornell.edu/dairy>

Cornell University
Cooperative Extension
Cortland County

South Central NY Dairy & Field Crops Program

60 Central Avenue
Cortland, NY 13045
Phone: (607) 753-5077
<http://www.scnyat.cce.cornell.edu/dairy>

Cornell University
Cooperative Extension
Cortland County

South Central NY Dairy & Field Crops Program

60 Central Avenue
Cortland, NY 13045
Phone: (607) 753-5077
<http://www.scnyat.cce.cornell.edu/dairy>

Cornell University
Cooperative Extension
Cortland County

South Central NY Dairy & Field Crops Program

60 Central Avenue
Cortland, NY 13045
Phone: (607) 753-5077
<http://www.scnyat.cce.cornell.edu/dairy>