

GUEST SPEAKERS:

June Grabemeyer is a recently retired agricultural economist, who has worked for many years for the Natural Resource Conservation Service, most recently in Michigan. Her work has included economic analysis of conservation practices. Her work has looked extensively at the economic benefits of pasture management practices. She conducted training programs for NRCS and Soil and Water Conservation District staff in Michigan. She has presented her work at the National Forage and Grassland Conference.

A. Fay Benson is the Area Extension Educator for the South Central New York Dairy and Field Crops Team. He works with small dairies, both conventional and organic, with a focus on grazing.
